Pretesting

The ability to quickly and accurately establish the best visual solution for your problems starts with pretesting. Quality data is obtained prior to seeing your optometrist and referred to during your consultation.

Experienced Optometrists

All optometrists undertake rigorous university training to be able to practise. Though it is the cumulative total of years in practise that makes the biggest difference in the identification, treatment and management of vision or ocular health problems.

Specialised Equipment

Our specialised equipment such as OCT (Optical Coherence Tomography) allows for precise analyses of the ocular structures. This record can then be referred to at future examinations for comparisons ensuring your future of vision.
